

All Together Now

Original title: All Together Now

All Together Now is a lively, tragic-comic group portrait in which the camera pans endlessly past three different moments at which people are together at the table: a reception with coffee and cake after a funeral, a wedding party and a birthday party. These are probably three of the most recognizable moments at which large groups gather together around the table. This video has no direct narrative structure, but between the lines one can discover a great deal about the relationships between the persons portrayed.
