

Coup de vent

Original title: Coup de vent

After more than thirty years, Aline and David see each other again in a café by the sea. The conversation begins tentatively. Aline shows genuine interest and smiles as she probes into David's life; David remains distant.

In silences, glances and small gestures, memories and loss creep in. As if what was washed away is reappearing. David reads from his book, Aline responds by dancing to music from the jukebox. Both seek the courage to face what they have pushed away for so long.
