Original title: Deadline 25/5

March 2014. Marianne Smidt has given up her job as journalist at the Flemish newspaper Gazet van Antwerpen and now works in a book-and-coffee shop, which gives her more time for herself and her 13-year-old son, Seppe. Her quiet life is disrupted when Seppe and his classmates fall victim to carbon monoxide poisoning at school. With the upcoming mother of all elections, and the chance of gaining a majority in the Flemish Parliament, this disaster is not a present for mayor Bert Coenen. Furthermore, there is great speculation as to the cause of the poisoning and, although all signs point in the direction of a human error, Marianne suspects a lot more is going on and decides to investigate...
