Original title: Dauw

In a small farming village, Noor and Sterre share a bond that blurs the line between friendship and love. They live in a self-created reality, convinced they can't exist without each other. As they drift through life, farmers and the cows in their fields quietly observe, seemingly intrigued by the eccentric duo. When their visions for the future diverge, the delicate bubble they've built bursts, putting their intense bond under strain. This experimental fiction captures the fragility of their world through unique visual elements and animations that underscore the symbolism of their delicate relationship.
