

Dulle Griet

Original title: Dulle Griet

We live a miserable life and one day we die. Marguerite's body is found lifeless in the Charleroi-Brussels canal. She ends up in an underground world populated by strange-looking characters. On the surface, her granddaughter Odile struggles to find meaning in life. The two women seem to connect in a mysterious way through Brueghel's painting Dulle Griet. As a guide explains the painting to a group of visitors, its various elements come to life in the women's worlds. The struggle never ends. But if we want it to be worth it, we have to fight.
