

Exodus

Original title: Exodus

The artist and filmmaker Nicolas Provost travelled across four western states of the US, encountering monumental landscapes of immense cinematic beauty. Without dialogue or an explicit narrative, he presents his sophisticated compositions in the form of a slideshow of tranquil situations that invite the viewer to look closely. Sometimes we can identify signs of life in the vast landscapes: people wearing caps and taking photographs; a small group of deer; a car with a sign on it reading 'Oversized Load'. Provost zooms in on the landscapes as the humans in them gaze around in amazement: the people on a bench, a woman waving, a couple standing arm in arm. Even the dogs face in the same direction, apparently impressed by their surroundings. Sometimes we can only infer the presence of humans through the reservoirs or electricity pylons.
