

François

Original title: François

François constitutes - along with the film Johan - a documentary portrait of patients with aphasia (memory lapses). François, a middle-aged man, suffers from aphasia and has trouble finding the correct words for simple expressions. In order to help his memory he undergoes various treatments, including speech therapy. During one of the sessions Sven Augustijnen is present with his camera, filming François who keeps chattering incessantly to fill the gaps in his memory. The stammering thoughts of aphasia patients are mirrored by the film's editing.
