

Inch'Allah

Original title: Inch'Allah

Inch'Allah's visual narrative is self-creating, as images are juxtaposed against one another, from the carnivalesque daily life of northern Europe to the intimate beauty of Yemen and Morocco. The surprising similarity and difference of the acoustic and the poetic voice-over heightens the search for universal beauty in the realisation of the work. At various moments, the use of the camera is questioned by personal intervention. Here the importance of the subjective view is underlined and at the same time negated by the process.
