May 22, 1967. A devastating fire in the Brussels Innovation Centre kills 323, injuring hundreds. In this disaster, 13-year-old Herman loses his parents. More than 50 years later, he invites Delphine, the former leader of a communist action group, to meet. He believes the fire was caused by a bomb attack by Delphine's Commune Che and wants to confront her and take revenge. The disaster changed the course of their lives forever: both lost their innocence and youth.
