

Lysistrata

Original title: Lysistrata

441 b. C., Athens is besieged by Spartan troops. Lysistrata comes up with a plan to annoy the men of all the women, who now have to sleep on their own each night, because of this fight. They agree to refuse sexual contact with them when they return from the battlefield. After some days of protest, the men surrender and promise never to fight again. Based on the work of Aristophanes
