

Mon

Original title: Mon

Old and lonely, a married couple struggles through the last days of their life. She's living in another world, far away from reality, and he's trying to find some sense in daily life by taking care of the household, trying not to lose touch with reality. In nursing his demented wife, he finds a purpose to live for, but her anxiety attacks make his life a living hell. What brought them in this state? Which event in the past triggered this situation? Does love really conquer all or is that just a sales pitch?
