

Red Star Line

Original title: Red Star Line

The documentary series presents a mosaic of human migration stories. Audiotapes containing over 2,000 interviews with people testifying about the most important and most difficult journey of their lives are kept on Ellis Island, just off the coast of New York, where migrants landed. We visit the descendants of these Red Star Line passengers in America, bringing with us the original sound recordings of stories told by their parents and grandparents. Together we discover why these people left everything they owned behind; how the RSL brought them across the ocean to New York; and how they tried to build a new life on the other side of the world.
