

State of Play

Original title: State of Play

Every year, thousands of South Koreans flock to one of the many stadiums in Seoul to watch the Pro League Competition of Starcraft, the most popular video game in the region, in which young professionals compete for the title of champion. The game itself, more than a decade old, is almost ancient in the fast-developing world of video games; but in South Korea it has become a national pastime. The players of the Starcraft Pro League are celebrities with a major cult following.
