

Suspect

Original title: Suspect

Sandy is 15. She and her mentally disabled brother Jimmy live with their mother Nell and stepfather Rob, whom Sandy refuses to accept as a father figure. She holds on to the only living memory of her natural father: Rascal, the dog. When Rob has the old pet put to sleep, Sandy, irritated and obstinate, withdraws even more into herself. She finds comfort with Lydia, a former social worker, whom she tells all about her nightmares, which have some sexual elements in them and in which Rob appears as well. Lydia starts proclaiming loudly that Sandy is yet another victim of sexual abuse. As a result, Rob is subject to a whole series of accusations and the public opinion grows increasingly convinced of his guilt. Nell, who is drawn into the media battle as well, finally succeeds at exposing the chain of half-truths, coincidences and lies.
