

The Death Of Tintagiles

Original title: De dood van Tintagiles

Three actors are locked in a black box in the middle of the room. It is completely dark in the box. Each actor has a sub-miniatur-infraredcamera, taped to his forehead, between the eyes. The ultimate subjective shot. The lighting in the box is infrared (like the diodes in your remote control) - utterly invisible for the actors, perfectly visible for the cameras. On top of the box are four video projectors that beam their images to the four points of the compass. A little bit like a lighthouse. Each point of view from the three actors will be beamed by one projector. The fourth projector shows a landscape : the frame of the actions.
