

The Second Night

Original title: La deuxième nuit

On the death of his mother, a director makes a film to see how much her disappearance has changed his vision of the world. It is an opportunity for him to look back over his relationship with her: a relationship that made him an individual, a man and a filmmaker. The Second Night is the final part of a trilogy that began with Letter From a Filmmaker to his Daughter, which was followed by Dreaming Films. The making of this 'Cabin Trilogy' is the fruit of 15 years of work and reflection.
