

The War Inside

Original title: The War Inside

We talk about conflict always in terms of winners and losers, but ignore the psychological toll it can take on both sides. The War Inside focuses on questions that are taboo within Israeli and Palestinian society. The six main protagonists are a group of psychologists in Jerusalem who go to schools to talk to students and teachers. Instead of the battles that take place in front of the cameras, this film wants to shed a light on the war inside the minds of those involved, balancing on the delicate line between fiction and documentary. As for the actors playing their role - just like the psychologists - they share their own experiences.
