

This Is Not a Potato

Original title: Ceci n'est pas une patate

Filip De Bodt, Geert Lenssens and volunteers got on with farmers of all kinds. They started talking and filming them from the perspective of 'What affects the people who grow our food?' They started in their own region (south east Flanders) and expanded to the rest of Belgium and Europe. The farmers testify about their work: A French farmer talks about the redrawing of the countryside into a desert while people from Africa and the Middle East discuss the consequences of the European export policy for their local economy: "Local agriculture is being destroyed and the victims leave with cranky boats to Europe"...
