

Voices of Liberation

Original title: Voices of Liberation

This series is about the international commemoration route that connects important milestones in WWII. The route forms a chain between the most important regions in the advance of the Western Allies: from southern England to the vast beaches of Normandy, from Paris to the Belgian Ardennes, and from the southern Netherlands to the Hürtgenwald forest, with Berlin as its final destination. The series guides us along this route, accompanied by local hosts who each have a link with the Second World War. Alongside the facts, told through the use of personal documents, they relate their personal stories, providing an alternative view of events.
